ABOUT THE PROGRAM

The Córdova and Fernós Congressional Internship Program was created to enable Puerto Rico college students to participate in congressional internships in Washington, DC through The Washington Center (TWC).

Participants in the Córdova and Fernós Program take part in 15-week semester in Washington, DC as interns. TWC provides quality placement and supervision, relevant course work and programming, and comprehensive evaluation. Students receive academic credits from their home institutions. The Program exposes participants to a wide array of ideas, cultures, people and professions, and politics and public policies for which the nation's capital is known.

TWC provides shared housing in professional-style apartments. Student life activities allow Córdova and Fernós Program interns to meet participants from other states and countries around the world, providing an enriching cultural and social experience.

The Córdova and Fernós Program is offered every Fall and Spring to up to 15 students each semester. To date, there are more than 900 alumni in the Program.

The knowledge and experience participants take with them when they return to Puerto Rico are important tools for success and leadership when they enter the professional world.

Many alumni have been employed in congressional offices, at the Puerto Rico Federal Affairs Administration, the Office of the Resident Commissioner and the private sector. As Puerto Rico's young ambassadors of goodwill, Córdova and Fernós Program alumni are poised to advance the interest of Puerto Rico as its future leaders.

Funding from the Puerto Rico Legislative Assembly covers approximately 80 percent of the program's housing, transportation and living expenses. Scholarships from the private sector cover the rest of the costs. Through this public-private partnership, college students from Puerto Rico receive full funding for their participation in the Program.

Córdova and Fernós Program participants are among the 400-450 college students who participate in TWC internship programs during the Spring and Fall semesters each year.
